Class Hours: 99

Medical transcriptionists listen to dictated recordings made by physicians and other health care professionals and transcribe them into medical reports, correspondence, and other administrative material. They generally listen to recordings on a headset, using a foot pedal to pause the recording when necessary, and key the text into a personal computer or word processor, editing as necessary for grammar and clarity. The documents they produce include discharge summaries, history and physical examination reports, operative reports, consultation reports, autopsy reports, diagnostic imaging studies, progress notes, and referral letters. Medical transcriptionists return transcribed documents to the physicians or other health care professionals who dictated them for review and signature, or correction. These documents eventually become part of patients’ permanent files.

Medical transcriptionists held about 105,000 jobs in 2004. About 4 out of 10 worked in hospitals, and another 3 out of 10 worked in offices of physicians. Others worked for business support services; medical and diagnostic laboratories; outpatient care centers; and offices of physical, occupational and speech therapists, and audiologists.

Class Hours: 22

This weekend class teaches the basic skills needed to operate a motorcycle in traffic. The course consists of classroom and range activities. The first half of the class familiarizes students with the location and operation of the controls. Students then practice riding on small motorcycles to demonstrate they have the strength, balance and coordination to perform straight-line riding, shifting, turning and stopping exercises.

The second half of the class introduces students to street riding strategies needed when sharing the road with other vehicles. Particular emphasis is placed on those skills that have been found lacking in motorcyclists who have experienced accidents. These skills include emergency braking, swerving and proper cornering techniques. All exercises are conducted at low speeds on a protected range.

Motorcycles are provided for the course. Students must wear a DOT-approved helmet, over-the-ankle footwear, long pants, a long-sleeve shirt or jacket, full-fingered gloves and protective eyewear (eyeglasses or sunglasses, goggles or face shield). We have a limited supply of helmets in various sizes. If possible, bring your own helmet to the riding portion of the class. This class starts on Friday evenings and finishes on Sunday afternoon.
